Kennedy Plan For U.S.-Soviet Projects Favored

By TOM HOGE

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) —President Kennedy's dramatic bid for a U.S.-Soviet moon expedition won generally enthusiastic reaction. His moderate policy statement stirred guarded hopes for progress in easing cold war tensions at the U.N. General Assembly session.

Kennedy's address Friday, following an unusually mild policy speech by Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko, heartened diplomats weary of bitter exchanges between the two big powers.

Gromyko welcomed the conciliatory nature of Kennedy's speech, but reserved comment on specific proposals, pending study. He also conveyed to Kennedy the "warm personal greetings" of Premier Khrushchev at a reception after the President's speech.

Gromyko's remarks seemed to support the growing hope that the Soviets, seared by the Cuban crisis and differences with Peking, are more interested in East-West amity than in rocket-rattling.

Pause In Cold War

Kennedy told the 111-nation assembly the world may have reached "a pause in the cold war." He set out basic U.S.-Soviet differences, but called for further steps in easing cold war tensions, specifically by pooling U.S. and Soviet space research and experience for a moon shot.

Delegates praised the tenor of Kennedy's speech and echoed his call for peaceful settlement of East-West differences.

There was considerable speculation why Kennedy suggested the joint moon expedition. Some delegates expressed the belief that Kennedy feels the United States cannot beat the Soviets to the moon on its own.

It was noted that U.S. space officials at Cape Canaveral voiced disappointment over this as an indication that the President seems ready to abandon the U.S. moon project.

His suggestion came at a time when public enthusiasm for the project apparently is waning, costs are spiraling and Congress no longer is rubber-stamping space agency money requests.

Lot For Amity

Delegates agreed that a combined moon journey would do a lot for East-West amity.

Editorial reaction in London was generally enthusiastic. In Bonn, West German government and opposition leaders joined in hailing the speech.

The Soviet news agency Tass gave extensive summaries of Kennedy's address but made no mention of his moon shot proposal.

Kennedy's expression of support for civil rights in the United States and human rights around the world were seen by Moscow Radio as propaganda.

Kennedy returned to Newport, R.I. Friday night after a cordial reception from delegates and from U.S. citizens employed by the U.N.

Cuba boycotted his speech. Carlos Lechuga, head of the Cuban delegation, said he did not want to hear "distortions of truth" from Kennedy in regard to the Cuban revolution. The Israeli seats were vacant because it was a Jewish holiday.

Change Of Pace

Gromyko's mild speech Thursday was in sharp contrast to the bitter invective the Soviets usually employ when addressing the world forum.

But Gromyko's attack on West Germany made many delegates wonder how far the Soviet Union really intends to go in lessening tensions in that direction.

U.S. Ambassador Adlai E. Stevenson commented that Gromyko's professed aim to lower international tensions was welcome to the United States. But he noted that the Soviet still "claimed all virtues for the Soviet Union and assigned all mistakes to the West."

White Teeners Face Grand Jury In Negro Killing

By REX THOMAS

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP) — Two white teen-agers, denied bond, remained in jail today for the slaying of a Negro boy in the wake of a church bombing which killed four Negro children.

The same grand jury which will decide whether to indict the white youths for murder will be asked to investigate the death of another Negro in the hours which followed the holocaust at the Negro church last Sunday. He was killed by a policeman.

The search for the killer whose bomb exploded during Sunday school services at the 16th Street Baptist Church continued.

Two state troopers assigned to Birmingham to help maintain order were involved in a brief scuffle Friday night with a Negro who, police said, later stabbed another white man.

"Forego Christmas"

The troopers, off duty, were in street clothes. Police said the Negro, booked as James Hall, apparently shoved one of the troopers and was dragged away by other Negroes after flashing a knife. Detective C.L. Pierce said Hall then stabbed Aubrey Hogan, who was waiting for a bus.

From elsewhere in the nation came new expressions of grief and resentment over the most recent outbreak of racial violence in Birmingham.

Negro author James Baldwin told an audience in New York Friday night that Americans should refrain from Christmas shopping until the nation "earns the right to celebrate the birth of Christ." He demanded the impeachment of Gov. George C. Wallace of Alabama.

Day Of Sympathy

New York's Mayor Robert F. Wagner, in tribute to the girls who died in the church bombing, proclaimed Sunday an official "day of sympathy, respect and determination to speed the day of equal opportunity for all."

The white youths charged with killing Virgil Ware, 13, while the Negro boy and his brother rode by on a bicycle last Sunday were bound over to the grand jury Friday.

Michael Lee Farley and Larry Joe Sims, both 16, have signed a statement saying that Sims fired two pistol shots at the Negro boy from a motor scooter the white youths were riding.

Sheriff Melvin Bailey said he has been unable to find any provocation for the shooting. The boys will remain in jail until a new grand jury meets Oct. 7 to consider the charge.

Soo Area Frost Warns Of Fall

By The Associated Press

Signs of approaching fall hugged the Canadian border today, but elsewhere weather conditions weren't too rigorous for the waning summer.

There was some frost during the night in the Sault Ste Marie area of Upper Michigan, and temperatures dipped almost down to the freezing mark in upper Maine.

A band of cloudiness and showers draped the map from just south of New England to New Mexico. There was some rainfall in Florida, and in Texas which had already been drenched by hurricane Cindy.

Autumn becomes the season at 12:24 p.m. (EST) Monday and it has already been felt in chilly temperatures around the country.

Temperatures ranged from the 30s to the 70s.

The 60s and 70s were prevalent across the southern half of the country and the 40s and 50s were common in the northern sections.

A few 30s appeared in the north-eastern sector.

Fair skies prevailed over most of the southern half, except for scattered areas in the Rockies and extreme southeast.

Inter-Faith Contact Planned By Vatican

VATICAN CITY (AP)—Francis Cardinal Koenig, archbishop of Vienna, is said to be under consideration to head a new Vatican secretariat for contacts with non-Christian religions of the world.

Pope Paul VI, in a papal document made public a week ago, said this seemed an opportune time to extend Roman Catholic contacts to non-Christian faiths, such as Judaism, Islam and Buddhism.

Unconfirmed reports at the Vatican mentioned formation of a new secretariat for this purpose with the 57-year-old Cardinal Koenig as the head.

Called "Russian Roulette"

Republicans Demand Brake On Spending With Tax Cut

By EDMOND LEBRETON

WASHINGTON (AP) — Republicans have told the people that Congress would be "playing Russian roulette with our destiny" if it approves President Kennedy's tax cut bill without a brake on federal spending.

Rep. John W. Byrnes, chief GOP spokesman on tax matters, presented the argument Friday night, saying the tax bill "offers a clear opportunity to tie down" federal spending but that Congress can't rely alone on Kennedy's promise to hold spending down.

"It is time to judge the administration by what it does, more than what it says," Byrnes said over the ABC and CBS television and radio networks and the Mutual radio network.

Continues Tonight

The Republican reply to President Kennedy's appeal will be continued tonight when Rep. Thomas B. Curtis of Missouri speaks on NBC television and radio at 6 p.m. EST.

The networks, all of which carried Kennedy's speech Wednesday night, made equal time available to the Republican National Committee.

Byrnes, of Wisconsin, contended the administration is taking "an unprecedented gamble with the entire economic system of the United States" and that if "this long shot does not come through" $100 billion may be added to the national debt before the budget is balanced.

Byrnes, senior Republican on the tax-writing Ways and Means Committee, is proposing an amendment making the tax cut inoperative unless the President submits, in January or earlier, spending estimates not above $97 billion for the fiscal year that began last July 1 and $98 billion for next year.

Byrnes termed these "comfortable requirements" for a "reasonably prudent administration with a Congress pledged to spending control."

"Promises Not Enough"

They would represent reductions of about $1 billion from the spending level now in effect, and probably a substantially deeper cut next year. But Byrnes said the limit would permit $4 billion more expenditures this year than last.

He said if spending can be tied down "future cuts will be a certainty as our economy expands."

Promises are not enough, Byrnes said. "What we need is a firm, unbreakable commitment. We simply ask that Congress make this tax cut contingent upon fulfillment of the promise to control spending."

Byrnes said his amendment would neither delay the bill nor change the size or the nature of the tax cut.

Commenting on Rep. Byrnes' speech, Rep. Hale Boggs of Louisiana and also a member of the Ways and Means Committee said:

"It is astonishing that Republicans can't even be for business if the plan is sponsored by a Democrat."

Boggs argued that "the sure way to keep chronic deficits is not to pass a tax bill."

China Accused By Russians Of Atomic Ambition

MOSCOW (AP)—The Soviet Union tonight accused Communist China of mass violations of Russian borders. It charged the Chinese had repeatedly tried to seize parts of Soviet territory.

By GEORGE SYVERTSEN

MOSCOW (AP) — The Kremlin claimed today that Red China's opposition to the limited nuclear test-ban treaty is based on its desire to acquire "the atomic bomb at any price."

The Soviet government told the Chinese to concentrate on economic development instead and suggested they be grateful to the Soviet Union for developing nuclear weapons "for the defense needs of the entire Socialist camp."

It said the Soviet Union holds superiority over the United States in weapons tested in the atmosphere, under water and in space. It noted that the nuclear treaty still permits the testing of weapons underground.

"Complete Apostasy"

The Kremlin gave its view in a statement in response to a Chinese charge Sept. 1 that the Soviet Union had been placed at a disadvantage by the treaty.

The statement was the first of a two-stage reply, the Soviet news agency Tass said. The second installment will be published Sunday, the agency said. The first part was published in Moscow newspapers and distributed by Tass today.

Moscow charged that the Chinese position amounts to "complete apostasy from the common, collectively formulated line of the Communist movement."

Can't Prove Need

The document contended that the Chinese leaders are unable to prove they need nuclear weapons "in the interests of China and of the entire Socialist camp."

Because of the worldwide approval of the treaty, the Chinese by their opposition to it "have suffered a serious moral and political defeat," the Kremlin said.

It said the reason it is not helping China with development of nuclear weapons is that any increase in such weapons in Communist countries "would immediately cause a chain reaction in the imperialist camp, the atomic cancer would spread all over the globe, increasing the nuclear war danger manifold."

Moreover, the statement said, "it is known very well that China does not possess extra funds" to build atomic bombs.

Dream Led Him To Body, Says Finder Of Boy

BULLETIN

Divers recovered the body of Charles Kobasic, 7, from the water shortly after 1 p.m. today. His body was found only a short distance from where the body of the Jensen boy was found.

The body of 10-year-old John Jensen was found in several feet of water at the edge of reeds at the Ludington Park shore today.

Arthur Bazner of 812 1st Ave. S., told authorities "I dreamed last night that I would find the body here and this morning I saw it."

The Jensen boy and Charles Kobasic, 7, disappeared about 10 a.m. last Sunday. There had been intensive search of the area, including the Ludington Park shore without result.

The search for the body of the Kobasic boy in the area is being renewed with divers and use of drags.

Bazner told William Flath and Harold Olsen of Escanaba that he had found the body. They notified the office of Sheriff Cully Johnson at 10:45 a.m.

Dr. Thomas McInerney, medical examiner, questioned Bazner briefly after Bazner said he first saw the body at 8 a.m. today.

Report Delayed

"Why the delay? Why didn't you report it?" Bazner was asked. "I tried to find somebody to tell but I couldn't find anybody," Bazner replied.

Bazner told State Police that he was now unemployed and "I'm looking for work."

An autopsy was ordered immediately, while search for the Kobasic boy's body was renewed in the shore front area.

John Chriske, supervisor of the Escanaba district for the Conservation Department, assisted in bringing the Jensen boy's body to the shore.

Meanwhile the boy's father, Policeman Raymond Jensen, was notified. He came to the scene and was taken home by friends.

Bazner told police that when he came to the shore he saw the top of the Jensen boy's head. "I knew what it was because last night I dreamt I would find the body there this morning," he said. He appeared confused about the elapse of time between his first sighting of the body and his report to authorities.

Reported At Dock

The finding of the boy's body was the first break in the disappearance case since the boys were last seen by their families at 10 a.m. last Sunday.

There was one report that the boys had been sighted playing in the vicinity of the "L" dock at the yacht basin Sunday afternoon. They were not there some 15 minutes later.

Skin divers had concentrated search effort in the basin area and along the shore.

The body of the Jensen boy was found near shore about 500 feet south of the bridge leading to the bathing beach. The area is east of the bandshell in Ludington Park.

Until today authorities were without a clue as to the fate of the boys.

No person had come forward to say positively that he has seen either of the youngsters. No bit of clothing or other article belonging to the youngsters has been found. "Nothing new" was the answer authorities gave when asked about developments in the case earlier today.

Widespread Search

Officers have been reluctant to speculate on the fate of the lads. Police today were methodically going over places they have searched many times before, looking for something that might give them a "break" that would help lead searchers to the missing boys when Bazner's report was received.

On Friday searchers covered an area south on M-35 from near the Sackville cottage to a line about five miles south of Cedar River.

Today, according to Sheriff Cully Johnson, volunteer searchers were working west of Escanaba along the Chicago North Western Railroad tracks and also Highway U.S. 2-41 with a destination point of Bark River.

The finding of the Jensen boy's body today climaxed search efforts that were intensive in the Escanaba area and extended across the Peninsula, into Wisconsin and other states through an alert to the FBI.

Iron Mt. High Has Bomb Scare

IRON MOUNTAIN (AP)—Some 600 students and teachers were evacuated from the Iron Mountain High School Friday following a telephoned bomb threat.

City and state police rushed to the school after a phone call to the police station in which the caller said, "Bomb, 2 o'clock, high school," the building was emptied by 1:55 p.m.

A search failed to turn up a bomb, but officials said the school would be closed for 48 hours on the recommendation of state police, who planned to continue the investigation.

Arrangements were made to have all football equipment as well as band equipment removed for a high school game scheduled for today. Classes will resume Monday morning.

Tighter Traffic Control Sought

LANSING (AP) — A group of state and local officials reached "substantial agreement" Friday on a series of proposals which would stiffen Michigan's traffic laws and perhaps cut the highway accident rate.

Some 13 persons, including judges, prosecutors and police officials, met for two hours with Gov. George Romney to discuss the stepped-up enforcement program and several long-range proposals.

They backed several suggestions designed to put more teeth into laws concerning traffic violators, including stricter penalties for persons driving under license suspension.

The group also supported proposals which would: —Seek more uniform, constructive treatment of violators in the courts.

—Make driver training mandatory.

—Give the state greater authority to call in delinquent drivers before they have acquired 12 points.

Lansing Ponders Tax Reform Fate

By GENE SCHROEDER

LANSING (AP) — The number one question on the capitol scene these days is: "Will he or won't he?"

The question reflects a wonderment as to whether Gov. George Romney will be able to pull a political miracle out of the fire of legislative debate and come up with a tax reform program for which he can claim credit.

Some observers argue that suffering a defeat on the issue would cause grievous and perhaps fatal harm to his chances of becoming the 1964 Republican presidential nominee (an honor he repeatedly insists he is not seeking).

But if Romney manages to push across a program incorporating a state income tax, with additional local-option income taxes, many believe he will have succeeded in enhancing his national image even more than the polls show he did in his first six months in office.

Mail received in the Executive Office has swung from an initial 10-to-1 response in favor of the proposals to about a 50-50 split.

In the legislature itself, there are many of his fellow Republicans who admit candidly that even though they might agree in principle with the purpose of the tax program, they won't be able to vote for a state income tax because to do so would be political suicide.

One of those who have disagreed openly with Romney's advocacy of a state income tax is Sen. Clyde Geerlings, chairman of the Senate Taxation Committee.

Geerlings has come up with his own fiscal reform program, pegged to a two per cent optional county income tax.

In arguing for the local-level approach, Geerlings declared:

"It is not reasonable that legislators gathered in Lansing should determine that what applies in Oakland is valid in Ogemaw; that the people of Kent and Keweenaw see things alike; that Wayne and Wexford find the same solution acceptable."

Coupon Day:

Sales Promotion Set For Tuesday

A day of bonafide bargains, of real pocket-book benefit for customers, is being arranged by Escanaba merchants for Coupon Day to be held Tuesday, Sept. 24, under sponsorship of the Chamber of Commerce retail division.

Paul Gilbertson, chairman of the Coupon Day Committee, said all of the participating merchants are in agreement that the public will be offered sales values "with at least 20 per cent minimum savings."

To obtain these savings the customers are to bring to the stores the Coupon Day coupons to be inserted by the merchants in the Escanaba Daily Press Coupon Day special to be published Monday.

"Only good stock with many items within season will be offered by the merchants on Coupon Day," said Gilbertson. "This means that many fall and winter items will be on the Coupon Day lists. There will be no 'distress' articles of any kind."

"This is a sincere attempt to bring to the Escanaba area real bargains and values," Gilbertson added. "We're sure the buying public will recognize this and by their patronage help to make Coupon Day a monthly feature."

So far as the customer is concerned, all he is required to do is select the bargains he wants and to bring with him to the store the money-saving coupon.

County To Vote On Jail Project Monday, Sept. 30

On Monday, Sept. 30, property owners in the Delta County area will go to the polls in a special election to vote on a proposal for a two-mill levy for one year, to be assessed on the 1963 tax roll for construction of a new county jail.

The Delta County Board of Supervisors set up the election.

Board members say this is the most economical way of obtaining matching funds to meet the county's share of the project. The Federal Government has authorized a grant of $177,000 to cover half the cost of the new jail. The facility is expected to cost $354,000.

Under the Accelerated Public Work Act, through which the grant was obtained, the county must raise its half of the money no later than Nov. 6, or the grant will be withdrawn. Another requirement is that the contractors must give preference in hiring local labor.

Inmate Count Down

The supervisors unanimously determined that two mills for one year is the most economical means of obtaining the county's required half. The jail would be paid off in one year and all funds would go for construction and local labor, without any of the money going for interest, financing, legal work, etc.

Cost to the taxpayer would be $2.25 per $1,000 of assessed valuation, as the tax must be spread on State Equalized valuation.

The board members pointed out that the only alternative, if the proposal is defeated, is that the old jail will be closed and prisoners housed in another jail which has the approval of the Department of Corrections. The nearest jail is at Menominee.

Figures obtained from county records reveal that during 1962 fewer prisoners were housed in the Delta County jail than any time within the past six years.

Jail Is Condemned

Based on these figures it would cost approximately $11,000 for transportation of the inmates and another $19,000 for their housing in a jail outside Delta County. In addition, it is believed that transporting inmates would require another car for the sheriff's department and two extra deputies.

Supervisors pointed out that the additional hire is believed necessary based on a minimum of two trips per prisoner, one on the arrest and later for court arraignment.

The county's present 75 year old jail has been marked for condemnation by the Michigan Department of Corrections, Bernard H. Davidson, Circuit Judge of the 25th Judicial Circuit, has indicated in a letter to the county board that he will be forced to sign a closing order when one is submitted to him.

The present facility can not be remodeled to meet state standards and there is no other qualified jail in the county where inmates could be housed.

Delta County is required by law to provide accommodations for inmates. The law also provides that the State must approve any jail plans and that they must conform to State standards, including a sheriff's residence in the jail.

Plan Public Meetings

In order to keep the old jail from being closed, the Board of Supervisors began planning for a new facility which meets the minimum requirements of the Michigan Department of Corrections.

Originally the State required that the jail be built to hold 50 prisoners. This figure was reduced to 44 upon an appeal by the supervisors and county officials.

The county has already invested $12,000 in the building plans, of which 50 per cent will be reimbursed by the Federal grant if the jail is constructed.

Plans call for the new jail to be erected on property to the north of and adjacent of the new Delta County Building.

To better inform the public on the issue public meetings have been scheduled to be held in Escanaba and Gladstone prior to the election. The first will be held in the County Building on Tuesday, Sept. 24, and the second at Gladstone City Hall on Wednesday, Sept. 25. Both will be at 7:30 p. m.

Attending the meeting in addition to county officials will be Robert Russell, state jail inspector for the Michigan Department of Corrections.

Pvt. Kenneth Boudreau, son of Mr. and Mrs. Octave Boudreau of 1710 1st Ave. S., has arrived in Hannau, Germany, where he will be stationed for two years with the 56th Engineer Co. His wife is the former Nancy Rureau of Bark River Rte. 1.

Escanaba Plans Plea For Aerial Bridge Service

The Upper Peninsula cities of Escanaba and Marquette moved toward an answer before the Civil Aeronautics Board to North Central Airline's application for an order authorizing the airline to suspend its Escanaba - Traverse City flights in a hearing at the State Office Building Friday afternoon.

Witnesses were divided into two broad groups; those who urged continuation of the present service and those who thought its loss inevitable and urged that effort be made to reroute the flight so it could succeed. Its failure to serve Lansing is regarded as a serious deficiency in Escanaba and Marquette.

The flight, now halfway in a 5-year trial period ordered by CAB on a use it or lose it basis, has not met the requirement of generating 7 passengers per segment (hops between cities) and North Central is obligated to report to CAB on its experience, as it is a subsidized operation.

North Central has been tightening its belt to cope with CAB's subsidy economy campaign and has lopped off its Duluth to Sault Ste. Marie flights, and a right flight segment from Marquette to Houghton, and the Escanaba to Marquette segment of the aerial bridge flight, which now operates from Detroit to Port Huron, Saginaw, Traverse City and Escanaba.

To Serve Peninsula
Robert Murphy of Menominee, chairman of the U. P. Air Service Committee when the aerial bridge was conceived and accepted by CAB, told the air service conference that the flight was created to serve the 75 per cent of U. P. population in middle peninsula with better transportation to Lower Michigan.

From Houghton to Lansing the saving is about 105 miles and $10 over the route via Green Bay, said Murphy and the Escanaba saving would have been about $7. But when CAB accepted the aerial bridge idea it "amazed" the sponsors by not serving Lansing, a chief objective, and by going to Detroit via Saginaw and Port Huron.

The route has never done heavy business and it's in trouble. Barry Craig, assistant manager of Tri-County Airport serving Midland, Saginaw and Bay City, said the service was important to that port and asked its continuance. It is Saginaw's only scheduled air tie to the U. P. Dow Chemical Co. of Midland has operations in the U. P. and must use private air services now because North Central service on its Saginaw run terminates at Escanaba.

Subsidy Favored

"I agree that one round trip a day is unsatisfactory," said James Palm of North Central. But he explained that many cities in the Dakotas are served that way now for lack of traffic and that U. P. cities have more seats available than formerly because of the change from DC-3 planes to convairs.

Kenneth Dorman, acting chairman of the U. P. Air Service Committee, urged support of all U. P. air services by federal subsidy, charged that Congressman Victor Knox favored subsidy—$150 million in the past 50 years—for the Soo Locks but not for airline service to get cancer patients to the Duluth clinic. He said North Central arrivals and departures in the U. P. had been reduced 30 per cent between 1961 and 1963.

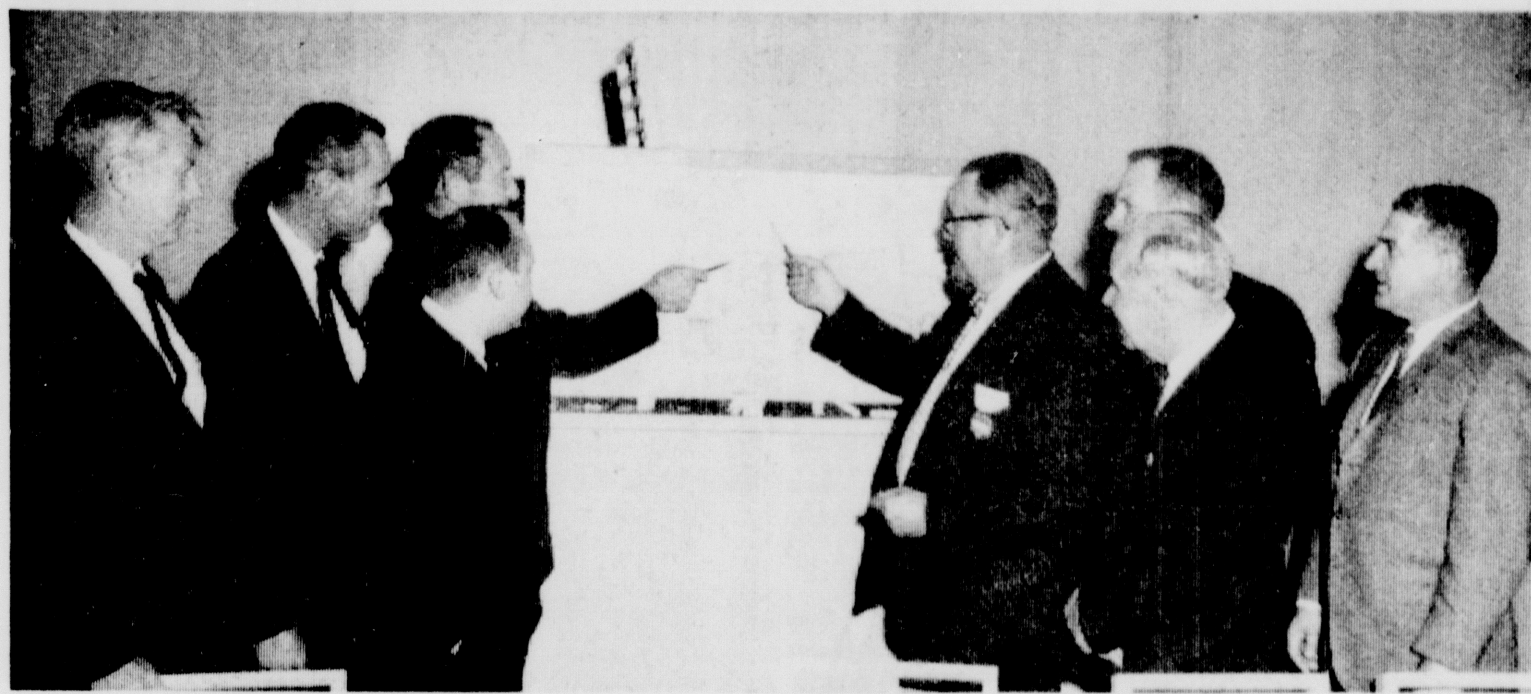

"A subsidy is for hardships, not quotas," said Dorman. "North Central's schedules are inadequate in most areas and we are never consulted on change of schedules. Unless we help North Central we will have no air service north of Green Bay in 5 years. It's been a wonderful local carrier, but I hate to see it go to Baltimore (in a proposed new service extension from Cleveland.)"

J. L. Handlos of Land O' Lakes, Wis., said the Gogebic County area needed good airline service to nourish its resort business, as it has many Lower Michigan clients.

Richard T. Dunnebacke, director of placement at Michigan Tech, Houghton, said discontinuance of Flights 344 and 345 in and out of Houghton had interrupted the college's lifeline. They terminate at Marquette now. Each year Tech's placement office is visited by over 400 industrial and governmental recruiters who interview seniors and at least 90 per cent of these employers travel by air.

Deletion of the night flight makes it impossible to visit Tech in a day and requires air visitors to stay in Houghton at least overnight and persons who want to spend a full day in Houghton must now plan a minimum of three days for their trip.

Other Copper Country representatives told of the mail delays caused by the deletion of the night flight and of the general inconvenience and harm to the area's economy.

Conferring in Escanaba Friday on North Central Airline service to the Upper Peninsula were, from left: Joseph Bilitzke, assistant state attorney general of Michigan; Fred L. Waite, Michigan Department of Aeronautics; Joseph Revis, foreman, Upper Peninsula Committee on Area Problems-ARA economist; William Wilson, manager of Operation Action-U.P.; Kenneth Dorman, acting chairman, U.P. Air Service Committee; James Palm, background, North Central Airline; Robert Murphy, Menominee, and Mario Fontana, Michigan Aeronautics Commission. (Daily Press Photo)

William Wilson, manager of Operation Action, Marquette, said any curtailment of transportation hurts economic development.

Joseph Revis, Upper Peninsula Committee on Area Problems-ARA economist, said its current transportation study shows that a third of U. P. air traffic goes to Chicago and Detroit, with the third largest destination for Escanaba and Marquette as Minneapolis.

Marquette City Attorney Waldo McCree said when the passenger trains were taken off, the U. P. was told it had air transportation. "Do they now say that they're doing away with the flights?" he asked.

Fred Waite of the Michigan Department of Aeronautics said it had suggested to CAB, not as an injury to Saginaw, but as an effort to save the flight, that it be rerouted from Traverse City to Lansing, Detroit and Cleveland. Escanaba and Traverse City liked this action. Port Huron didn't care, but Saginaw opposed it.

Mario Fontana of Iron Mountain, a member of the State Board of Aeronautics, suggested that every effort should be made to encourage greater use of the service. "We've got to get more people to fly or lose the flight, and, if necessary, reroute it to make it feasible," said Fontana. "Let's use what we've got and then we'll be in a position to ask for more."

Mayor Harold Vanlerberghe presided and City Manager George Harvey arranged the conference.

Williams In City To Address Demo Strategy Meeting

A strategy meeting of Upper Peninsula Democratic leaders today will hear G. Mennen Williams, six-term governor of Michigan and now assistant U.S. secretary of state for African affairs, who was scheduled to arrive in Escanaba by plane about 2 this afternoon.

Zoltan Ferency, Michigan Democratic State Central Committee chairman, said that Williams will convey to the group the need for Democratic support of President Kennedy's national program: The nuclear test ban; foreign economic policy; and aid to the emerging African democracies.

About 50 persons will attend the session which began at 11 a.m. today in the House of Ludington, and was to continue into the afternoon to hear Williams. James Chapke, chairman of the Delta County Democratic Committee, said that party chairmen and leaders from all of the U.P. counties were invited to attend.

Particular emphasis in the discussions will be Democratic finances, campaign organization, and the "possibility of electing a Democrat to Congress from the 11th District," said Ferency.

In preparing the groundwork for the 1964 campaign in the Upper Peninsula, the Democrats at their strategy meeting here today will call upon prominent Michigan Democrats in addition to Williams. Present for the meeting are:

Miss Adelaide Hart, vice chairman of the State Central Committee; Mrs. Mildred Jeffrey, Democratic national committeewoman; and Neil Stabler, congressman at large.

Under the congressional reapportionment plan, the 11th and 12th districts of the U.P. and northern Lower Michigan will be combined. The present representatives from the "old" districts are both Republicans — Victor Knox of Sault Ste. Marie, 11th District, and John B. Bennett, Ontonagon, 12th District. Both are Republicans.

Both Bennett and Knox have said that they will be candidates for nomination in the reorganized 11th District.

Mentioned as a possible primary candidate on the Democratic side is Robert Olsen of Escanaba, who has served the Democrats in Northern Michigan in various capacities for years and is currently 11th District chairman.

Voting On Jails

If some of the politicians have it cased right, the people in Delta County are waiting for Monday, Sept. 30 to klobber a proposal for a new Delta County jail in a special election.

There seems to be a feeling of expectancy and even delight in some quarters at the prospect of being able to vote No for once "where it won't hurt." (Most voters are a little edgy about voting No on school issues.

Jails, it seems, are unpopular places. No one wants to be an inmate in one. Given a chance to vote on a new jail, voters can save some money by saying No.

Only it won't work out that way.

If Delta County turns down the jail on Sept. 30 it will be the biggest local political goof since the county rejected a proposal to build a Delta County Building with WPA aid during the depression. Recently the county provided a new county building at its own expense. It'll be paying for it for years to come, because it rejected the opportunities for economies presented by a work-relief project.

Something of the same sort is offered Delta County in its jail project. The Accelerated Public Works Program is a federal make-work program to perk up the economy. It has granted Delta County a gift of $177,000 to build a new jail. That's half the estimated cost of the new structure. The county would have to pay the other half.

The County Board of Supervisors proposes to raise the rest of the money by a 2 mill tax for one year only, which would bring in about $150,000. The rest would come from the county's general fund.

Our supervisors who developed this plan know that the county has to provide a new jail. The State Department of Corrections has delayed condemnation of the old one to permit the county to replace it. It's unsafe, inefficient and beyond repair. Unless the county replaces it, the state will close it and Delta prisoners will be transported to the Menominee jail. It won't take many years of that sort of foolishness to equal the cost of a new jail. Delta County Clerk William Butler has been informed that Houghton County spent $32,000 in one year transporting prisoners after its own jail was closed. And it didn't have to haul them as far as Delta will.

And then there's always the uncertainty about the availability of another federal grant of matching funds to build a new jail later.

Delta taxpayers tempted to vote No on the new jail should know:

1. That county costs will go up until the jail is replaced.
  2. That it's a taxpayers' "bargain" anytime they can buy a major institution of government with a one-year tax levy.
  3. That they must eventually build a new jail.
  4. That they should build one. (This is an essential institution for law enforcement and welfare work. The county should not house its charges in unsanitary, unsafe or uncomfortable quarters. As a Manistique man advertised when Schoolcraft County was debating jail replacement a few years ago: "Vote Yes; you may be in it yourself some day!")
- The jail would cost the average homeowner no more than $10. All his money would go for construction cost. There would be no bonding, no financing costs or interest payments with the cash deal program worked out by our Board of Supervisors. They're trying to save the taxpayers some money. A No vote can only delay the bill and will increase it.

Finding The Way Farewell - With Integrity

By RALPH W. LOEW, D. D.

This is a report of a funeral and its simple, honest reverence. After watching many Americans attempt to disguise death or attach sentimentalities, this moment in a Finnish cemetery was filled with integrity.

The graveyard was next to a large and beautiful church in Finland, about 450 miles from the Arctic Circle. We were guests of a family whose hospitality was as tall as the great trees which lined the lake. They welcomed us to their home, to the joy of their 5 little blonde children—and to their sauna (steam bath).

On a bright Sunday morning the singing of a sturdy Lutheran chorale filled the air as several hundred persons came into the nearby cemetery.

A man, age 36, had drowned while fishing and now his widow, his children, and his friends walked to the open grave where the pastor awaited. Clothed in his knee-length black coat, the white tabs at the collar, he looked the tower of strength. Beside the grave was the mound of soil, with 5 spades thrust in at grotesque angles.

The Finnish words were foreign to my ears; the spirit was intelligible and clear. The service completed, the pastor took the small, black spade and poured in a small amount of the fine soil. Then each of the family placed a handful of dust and the elder son dropped fresh boughs of pine.

Immediately 4 young male relatives stepped forward and began to fill the grave while a many-stanzaed hymn was sung. When they tired, others stepped forward to take their place. So the grave was filled, and the mound covered with pine boughs.

As the hymn was completed the widow stepped forward, read the verse of Scripture on the ribbon of the sheaf of flowers which she carried and placed this last token on the grave. Each of the women among the mourners did the same and then they entered the church for the morning worship.

It was all simple and reverent, honest and full of integrity.

Once again, home in America, we shall remember the tall trees that filtered sunlight by the lake-side, the roses which bloomed over the graves of the young who died defending their country, and the shy but friendly people of this north country.

And we remember a funeral which, in its honesty, shames many of our sentimentalities which have bled faith from one of life's important moments.

Edson In Washington

By PETER EDSON

WASHINGTON—(NEA) — A new look at United States relations with Europe may be in the making. Its major elements are economic—trade, tariffs, foreign investments and balance of payments.

But back of these strictly business issues is seen a need for reappraisal of political and military ties. It looks toward a more equitable sharing of all free world defense costs, including foreign aid for the developing countries.

This prospect is emphasized by the White House Conference on Export Expansion, which drew over 200 top business leaders to Washington.

This conference concentrated on enlarging America's already favorable surplus of exports over imports. But this is seen as only one element in the much larger problem of bringing all U. S. international relations into better balance.

European business and political leaders have a much different view of this complicated world situation than do American leaders, says Dr. N. R. Danielian, president of International Economic Policy Assn. This is a private research organization servicing a number of American corporations in foreign trade and investment.

"Even if the United States could solve its balance of payment deficit by increasing exports," says Danielian, "many Europeans feel the result would be depression for them. They believe that any increase in U. S. exports would make them lose business at home, or it would take away European export markets in third countries."

An important factor in this situation is the growing desire—led by President Charles de Gaulle of France—to make Europe more self-sufficient economically and militarily.

The American plan for a North Atlantic Treaty Organization nuclear defense force under U. S. leadership is dead, says Danielian, because Europe would not buy it and pay its share of the costs.

Similarly, he reports that Europeans have no intention of reducing their existing tariffs against American automobiles and agricultural products in which U. S. exporters believe they have the best chance to increase trade with Europe.

If this report is accurate, it does not augur well for success of the so-called "Kennedy round" of tariff reduction negotiations scheduled to begin next spring with "trade czar" Christian A. Herter as chief U. S. bargainer.

If the United States cannot increase its exports to Europe, perhaps the next best opportunity for reducing the American balance of payments deficit may be found in increasing foreign investments. Their earnings could be brought back to this country as profits.

Europeans, however, are afraid of the competition from American investments overseas and would like to curtail them.

At the same time, Europeans oppose any curbs on their investments in the United States. They help the Europeans earn dollars on which they can demand payment in gold.

This is a constant threat to the American gold reserve and another major point of difference on economic policies of the two continents.

The final and most troublesome difference is over foreign aid. The United States wants Europe to bear an increasing share of the aid program for developing countries as another means of reducing America's balance of payments deficit.

The European justification for not doing more in this field is that the United States, with the highest living standard in the world, can best afford to give foreign economic and military aid and should continue to do so as its duty.

Europe spends less than 6 per cent of its gross national product for defense, compared to the U. S. 11 per cent. Germany pays a share of the European NATO defense costs by buying considerable military equipment from the United States.

The other NATO countries pay back nothing, but bask in the collective security of American nuclear protection.

If the United States was to suggest that it would have to reduce its military aid outlays, a loud scream probably would be heard. But as a bargaining point in seeking a new arrangement for more equitably sharing such costs, such a suggestion might justify.

About 50 men in charge of maintenance and fire protection remain at the new dock project in Escanaba while building operations are temporarily halted.

Escanaba city police are rated among the best pistol shots in Michigan as a result of a pistol shoot in which city police and state police participated.

Only 15 duck stamps have been sold at the Manistique Post Office and hunters are urged to comply with this requirement before the duck hunting season starts.

George N. Harder, general manager of the I. Stephenson Co., left last night for Chicago where he will attend the annual convention of the National Hardware Manufacturers Association.

Louis Larsen of Escanaba was elected president of the local Equitable Reserve Assn., for the ensuing year.

G. W. Tennant of St. Ignace who recently addressed the Escanaba Kiwanis Club concerning his experiences with Admiral Byrd in the South Pole Expedition, has again been invited to join the Admiral in another expedition.

Prairie Weather Factor In Good Goose Hunting

Surveys of geese breeding grounds in the prairie provinces indicate there was more water this year and a favorable hunting season, is predicted, L. G. Schemenauer, of Newberry, district game supervisor, reports.

Ducks, he said, are beginning to flock and reports indicate good hunting in certain areas. A fair to good year is predicted for duck hunting.

Ruffed grouse will provide scattered good hunting, with some poor areas. The lack of uniformity is due to cold, rainy weather 2½ days in June, during height of the hatch. Sharp-tail are in fair supply, he said.

The small game season opens Oct. 1. Dates of the duck season are Oct. 5-Nov. 8 and for geese, Oct. 5-Dec. 13.

'Statue' Is Sandhill Crane

A group of visitors in the Blaney area were surprised this week when they asked Bill Barker if "that was a statue out there in the lake" and learned it was a sandhill crane.

About a dozen of the cranes are in the Cedar Lake and Ford Lake area, where they nested. Due to low water levels, the crane was standing on mud in the center of the lake.

A couple blue herons put in there for one day too, and about 150 wild geese. Barker feeds the birds for Blaney.

Ferguson Urges Teacher Tenure

Delegates from many Upper Peninsula schools met today in the Liberty Cafe, for the fall Tri-Area meeting of the Michigan Department of Classroom Teachers. Mrs. Beulah Miller, Area 16 director, of Sault Ste. Marie, presided at the business session which made plans for the Oct. 11 DCT breakfast and convalesce at Escanaba.

The group commended the recent action of the Michigan Education Association directors in launching a campaign for statewide tenure of Fair Employment Practices Act for Michigan Teachers. Mrs. Miller said that promotion of statewide teacher tenure has long been a part of the program of action of the Classroom Teachers Department, as well as the MEA.

Robert Ferguson, Upper Peninsula representative for the MEA noted that "this petition campaign will provide Michigan citizens and communities a unique opportunity to elevate the status of the teaching profession and to demonstrate their belief in the importance of quality education in our rapidly changing world."

"Tenure, or fair employment practices for Michigan teachers, will provide better service for children. Psychologists generally agree that the morale of the teacher has a decided effect on the achievement of the child. Youngsters should be taught by teachers who are not emotionally upset by the threat of annual contract renewal or the danger of an unjustified loss of position because they opposed 'self styled book censors' or members of extremist groups, of the right or of the left."

"Teachers have a professional responsibility to develop a child's ability to think. This necessitates that both sides of a controversial question are explored. In some Michigan communities this would result in reprisals against the teacher by the vocal minority in an extremist or special interest group. Tenure prevents arbitrary or hasty action by an employing board, and provides a uniform policy of fair employment and dismissal for the entire state."

"We are fortunate in most Michigan communities that we do not witness the terrible specter of school crises of unfair dismissal or personnel practices. But for the communities that do, decades are needed to heal the scars of factionalism and erosion of their school's program for the community's youngsters and youth."

"Tenure also provides for better selection of teachers, for improvement in the community's ability to retain good teachers. Over 70% of this country's teachers are teaching under tenure. Twenty-four states and the District of Columbia have statewide tenure. In an opinion poll of superintendents, 71 pct. favored tenure for their teachers and 91 pct. of those favoring tenure said it had helped build up teacher morale and to retain good teachers in their communities."

Other officers attending were Editha Haller of Ripley, Area 18 director; Marian Parker, Menominee, and John McDonald of the Sault, newly elected board member from Region 16.

Four Going To Land, People Meet

Schoolcraft County will have four persons attending the land and people conference in Duluth Tuesday and Wednesday, seeking ways to implement economic development programs planned for Schoolcraft County.

The group leaving Monday morning will include Leonard Walters, a nursery operator; Robert Leny, industrial employee; Lindsley Frenette, operator of a feeder beef calf and timber business; and Dean Rhoads, new county extension director.

Frenette, a member and former chairman of the county board of supervisors, hopes to get information on programs the county wants and ways of obtaining matching funds. Discussion of power rates in comparison with other areas, county planning and road improvements will be sought.

Frenette has been a supervisor 10 years, is a former Navy carpenter and Studebaker Corp. machine operator. He is 36, married and has six children and notes "a fellow won't always work much if he sits around and waits for other people to give him jobs."

Leny, a member of the Schoolcraft Road Commission, is an oiler for Inland Steel, a job he took shortly after high school graduation. He hopes to find methods to aid road improvements which link with park improvements. For example, money is available for Indian Lake park area, but the road money is lacking. He is married, father of two children and a member of the National Guard.

Walters, who has lived in the area 33 years and worked as an electrician downstate. He hopes to find ways in which county programs can be activated. He is a member of the board of supervisors and the county planning commission. Says Walters: "We have so many committees, they kid us, that we virtually can have a committeemen behind every tree. We have some good programs planned, such as the housing development planned for retired folks, and we need more power and industry."

Walters, who has 14 children, worked as an inspector for the Algoma Central-Nadson Bay Railroad in Canada after World War 1 service with the field artillery, then went to Lansing. He had his own electrical shop at Mackinac.

He worked in shipyards and for the U. S. war department in World War II, at atomic plants in Paducah, Ky. and Portsmouth, O., and was a state electrical inspector for five years and REA inspector two years.

Rhoads is new to Schoolcraft County, coming as extension director from Rogers City.

A highlight of the conference will be appearance of President Kennedy Sept. 25 and the session will be opened by Orville L. Freeman, secretary of the agriculture.

House of the Week

'Other FHA' Funds This One

Country Gentleman: This handsome three-bedroom ranch is of the type for which eligible applicants can obtain a mortgage loan directly from the federal government at 4 per cent interest.

There's another FHA in Washington, the Farmers Home Administration, whose aim is to help families have a home like today's House of the Week—persons who otherwise might never have the satisfaction of owning their own homes.

Unlike the better known FHA (Federal Housing Administration) which guarantees a private lender that you will pay off your mortgage, the Farmers Home Administration also can make a housing loan directly to you at the uncommonly low interest rate of 4 per cent. During the last fiscal year the little known agency placed $796 million in loans, both those it made directly and those it insured.

Today's house, a delightful three-bedroom ranch designed by architect Lester Cohen, is typical of the type for which Farmers Home makes direct loans to eligible buyers. It is design J-94 in the weekly series.

The agency makes both farm and non-farm loans; the recipient simply must live in a rural community of 2,500 persons or less. He also must be someone who can't obtain credit from conventional sources at prevailing rates in the community. According to Howard Bertsch, the agency's administrator, its purpose is "to supplement and not supplant other credit." Last year about half the agency's loans went to non-farmers.

Though private lenders presumably conclude Farmers Home borrowers are questionable risks, the agency has had great success trusting in the honesty and industriousness of rural Americans. Last year it foreclosed only six mortgages of 18,285 issued.

Loans average about $15,000 and the agency endeavors to limit them to homes of not more than 1,400 square feet. Today's house contains only 1,251 square feet. The space is so expertly arranged that every inch is used to its fullest, and Architect Cohen was able to include some "large house" type features. Its overall dimensions are a tidy 57'6" wide by 31' deep.

Additional Details
Architect Cohen worked with Farmers Home officials in designing this house and consulted plans submitted to him by the

J-94 STATISTICS

A one story house containing living room, dining room, family room, kitchen, three bedrooms, 1½ baths, optional basement, attached garage. Living area is 1,251 square feet in over-all dimensions of 57'6" wide by 31' deep. Designed to conform to requirements of Farmers Home Administration for direct 4 per cent loan to either farm or rural non-farm occupants.

agency. "They were very nice," said Cohen, "but we think this house is better than any they showed us — better looking and better arranged."

The house plainly would grace any neighborhood, rural or urban, and also would enhance a farm. Wood shingles and stone facing are used in the front. The covered porch and small-paneled living room windows are nice accents.

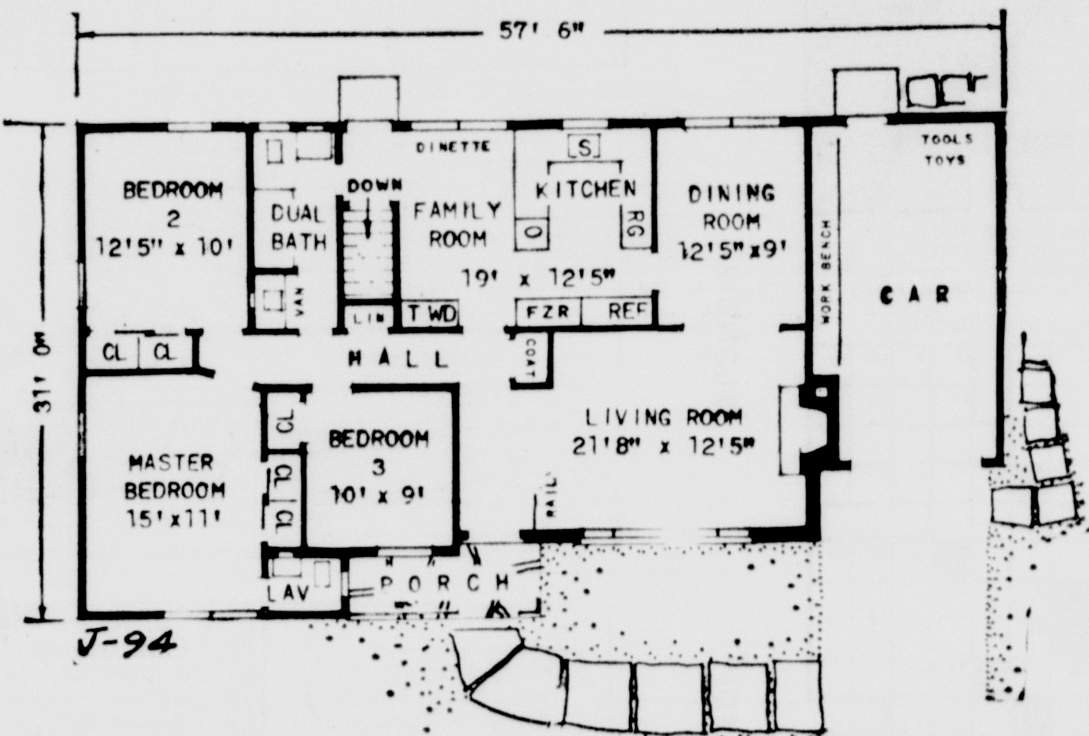

If the owner wants to economize further or simply doesn't need a basement, the house can be built without one. In this case the furnace and water heater would occupy the space shown for the basement stairs.

Typical of the way Cohen has fitted luxury features into the limited space is the arrangement of the lavatory adjoining the master bedroom. He has stolen some interest. The exterior features wood shingles and stone facing, a covered porch, and attractive small-paneled living room windows.

The Right Touch: Just the right amount of formality characterizes the living-dining area of this house. The view is from the front of the living room; the door at far left leads to the family room; the dining room is at right rear.

Floor Plan: Living area is 1,251 square feet. Note how every inch is used to maximum advantage; the abundance of closets; and the well-planned kitchen. If no basement is desired, heater and furnace would occupy space shown for basement stairs.

of the less valuable front porch area, leaving the bedroom with its full 15' by 11' dimensions.

The architect made use of standard lumber lengths and took other economy measures to save enough cost so he could include such other fine features as a living room fireplace, an abundance of large closets, and a well designed dual bath accessible both from the family room and the bedroom area.

Though the house doesn't have a separate foyer—space is just too precious for that sort of thing—Cohen has located the front door so that visitors don't barge right into the living room. A neat railing gives the effect of a foyer, and what would be foyer space is used to extend the area of the already large living room.

Any housewife would be pleased with the kitchen in this house. The work area is designed to save steps, provide plenty of counter and cabinet space, and to keep curious husbands and children from underfoot while mama does the cooking. Note also that there is room for both a freezer and a refrigerator, and that a window over the sink permits excellent supervision of the backyard.

In short, this is a superb home either for a small city lot or the wide open spaces of a farm, and it's available both to those who can borrow from a lending agency and — through the Farmers Home Administration — perhaps also those who can't.

A three-member local county committee of the Farmers Home agency determines eligibility of applicants. If you can't locate the office in your area, write to the Farmers Home Administration, U.S. Department of Agriculture, Washington 25, D.C.

Kids Get Hypodermic 17 Times By Age 10

Words of wisdom for parents about how to prepare children to accept "the needle" were published in Health, quarterly magazine of the Michigan Tuberculosis and Respiratory Disease Association.

Miss Jean Rebentisch, R. N., maternal and child health nursing consultant for the Michigan Department of Health says every Michigan youngster, by the time he is 10 years old, will receive a minimum of 17 needles, provided State Health Department standards are observed.

These are nine tuberculin skin tests, six immunizations of the quadruple vaccine (for diphtheria, whooping cough, tetanus and polio) and two smallpox vaccinations.

In addition, there are the injections decreed by physicians as treatment for various illnesses.

The attitude of parents is the most important single factor in determining how a child will respond, Miss Rebentisch said.

"The parent who talks about how terrible it is to have the needle, or who cringes as she sees her child about to receive the injection, sets the stage for a poor reaction," Miss Rebentisch said. "The tendency of youngsters, particularly pre-schoolers, to link punishment with illness has long been recognized by doctors and nurses, she said.

"They tend to think of illness as a form of punishment but how much of this is the result of the lack of ability to cope with illness and how much is the result of the threats of parents who tell them they will get sick if they don't obey is difficult to determine," she said.

Miss Rebentisch advises parents to be matter-of-fact, tell the children they will get a prick, that it will hurt, but that the hurt will last only for a minute.

It is a good idea, she said, to comfort a small child after the shot is administered.

"He should not be told not to cry or to be 'big and brave' because by implication he is made to feel like a baby or a sissy for reacting quite naturally. This adds embarrassment to his problem," she said.

Michigan's skin-testing program is the largest conducted by any state in the union. Christmas Seal contributors pay for it.

Space Product Business Sought

ANN ARBOR (AP)—Five University of Michigan professors have been named to a committee that will study the school's space program and its impact on Michigan industry and space research.

The U-M Board of Regents was informed about the new committee at the regents' monthly meeting Friday.

Ralph A. Sawyer, vice president for research, said the committee will try to determine how the space research program can be related to industry in the state.

Sawyer also reported that the U-M's Great Lakes research fleet now has four boats instead of two. He said a Chicago industrialist, Bruce L. Simpson, donated a 46-foot craft to the project and that the school soon will receive a 50-foot boat under an $85,000 National Science Foundation grant.

The U-M oceanographic research program includes studies of water pollution and chemical and biological analyses of the Great Lakes.

In other business, the regents accepted $281,612 in gifts, grants and bequests which had been received in the past month.

U-M Will Study Lake Michigan

ANN ARBOR (AP)—The U. S. Public Health Service has awarded a four-year $1 million contract to the University of Michigan for research on Lake Michigan.

The service's water supply and pollution control division said the grant was the largest ever given to a single research organization. The study will deal with future management of the lake and preservation of its water quality.

Michigan scientists will use research ships based at Charlevoix and Grand Haven.

Home Cures Aid Problem Drawers

Furniture drawers, though basically simple, are subject to pesky disorders.

The most common complaint: sticking. Drawer pulls often become loose and, if not taken care of quickly, will cause marring of the drawer's surface finish. With age, the joints of a drawer may loosen.

The problem of a sticking drawer is most likely to occur in warm weather. Generally, drawers are made of soft wood and left unfinished. Moist air will cause the wood to swell. Drawers that work well all winter may do so only because the air is relatively dry.

Slight sticking can be cured at times with nothing more than the rubbing of paraffin or a lubricating stick over the sliding parts. If this doesn't do it, sand the sliding parts until the drawer opens and closes smoothly. If there is severe rubbing and sanding won't correct it, you may have to plane these parts.

Do not remove too much wood. Warm, dry air may cause the wood to shrink later on, and the drawer may then develop a wobble.

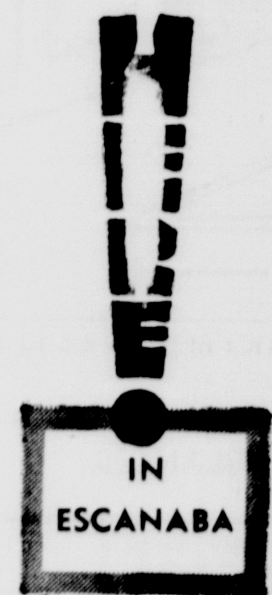

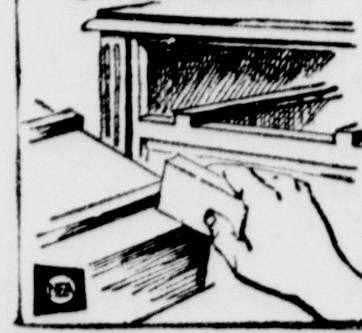

Don't force a drawer that is stuck. And don't fool with makeshift repairs. Get at the cause. Attack the problem by removing the back covering of the piece of furniture.

The backs of most bureaus are held on with screws or small nails.

You may be able to maneuver the drawer a little better from in back.

If it remains jammed, and if you can't remove contents through a partial opening, better call on a carpenter to free the drawer. Applying heat to dry the

Frosted Stuff For The Birds

Dear Ann Landers: A referee is needed. Will you serve? I have been told for as long as I can remember that I have very beautiful hands. My nails are long and the type that do not break. It so happens that I especially like platinum frosted nail polish. I keep my nails perfectly manicured and people are always commenting on them.

The other evening, much to my surprise, the man I've been going with for several months said, "Why don't you stop wearing that hideous nail polish? Your nails look like an eagle's talons."

I was dumfounded but made a quick recovery and told him I would choose the kind of nail polish I liked—and for the time being I like this.

Do you feel perhaps I should do as he suggests just to please him? Or should I refuse to be pushed around?—TARSUS

Dear Tarsus: I don't see any evidence that he is trying to push you around. The man simply let you know he doesn't like your nail polish.

I say stop wearing the platinum frosted stuff. If your nails and hands are as lovely as you say, ANY shade of polish will look well. The man will be flattered and you will have lost nothing.

(P. S. I agree with him. I don't like that platinum frosted stuff, either.)

Dear Ann Landers: We moved into our new home only a few days ago. It is a charming place, just what we've been looking for—but I think we may have trouble with the woman next door. I'm writing to ask how to handle the problem before it starts.

When our van of furniture is not a serious one, in fact it is not really a problem—but a question which needs an answer.

My husband was married to his first wife for 40 years. I was married to my first husband for 37 years. We have discussed our burial plans in a sensible and realistic way. We both agree that each of us should be buried beside our first mates in our respective family plots.

What I do not know, however, is which name I should be buried under. How should the headstone read? Since I will be resting next to my first husband should I be buried under his name? Thank you.—TWICE BLESSED

Dear Blessed: The name on the headstone should read: Mrs. Alice Smith (your first husband's name) Jones (your second husband's name).

Does almost everyone have a good time but you? If so, send pulling up this neighbor hauled a lawn chair over to the edge of her property—as close to ours as she could get. She sat there the whole time the van was unloading, examining every piece of furniture as it was carried into our home.

I'm worried about a woman who has so much free time that she can spend an afternoon this way. I've never had any trouble with neighbors and I don't want any now. From her looks I can tell she is not the type I'd care to have anything to do with. How can I be cool without being cold?—STORM WARNING

Dear Storm: I know of no personality thermometer which registers degrees, but most people recognize a chilly hello when they hear it.

If you will keep your hello at about 60 degrees Fahrenheit you will have no problem.

Dear Ann Landers: My husband and I have been married six years. We have passed our 70th birthdays but you would not think so if you saw us on the ballroom floor.

is not a serious one, in fact it is not really a problem—but a question which needs an answer.

My husband was married to his first wife for 40 years. I was married to my first husband for 37 years. We have discussed our burial plans in a sensible and realistic way. We both agree that each of us should be buried beside our first mates in our respective family plots.

What I do not know, however, is which name I should be buried under. How should the headstone read? Since I will be resting next to my first husband should I be buried under his name? Thank you.—TWICE BLESSED

Dear Blessed: The name on the headstone should read: Mrs. Alice Smith (your first husband's name) Jones (your second husband's name).

Does almost everyone have a good time but you? If so, send pulling up this neighbor hauled a lawn chair over to the edge of her property—as close to ours as she could get. She sat there the whole time the van was unloading, examining every piece of furniture as it was carried into our home.

I'm worried about a woman who has so much free time that she can spend an afternoon this way. I've never had any trouble with neighbors and I don't want any now. From her looks I can tell she is not the type I'd care to have anything to do with. How can I be cool without being cold?—STORM WARNING

Dear Storm: I know of no personality thermometer which registers degrees, but most people recognize a chilly hello when they hear it.

If you will keep your hello at about 60 degrees Fahrenheit you will have no problem.

Obese Children Generally Found To Be Inactive

BOSTON (AP) — It's just like trying to make a horse drink: You may lead a fat child into sports but he may not exercise.

A Boston doctor took movies of overweight and normal weight children engaging in individual and team activities. Even in games, the obese children on the average were much less active than the non-obese.

Take tennis, Dr. Jean Mayer, associate professor nutrition at the Harvard School of Public Health, says this.

"The active player went after the ball while his inactive competitor attempted a return only when the ball was returned to his immediate vicinity."

Dr. Mayer and his associate, Dr. Beverly Bullen, made an analysis that showed the average child was inactive 20 per cent of the time in tennis while the obese child managed to remain inactive 35 per cent of the time.

In volleyball ball, obese children were even less active. They succeeded in remaining inactive 82 per cent of the time, compared with 34 per cent inactivity for the average-weight player. The fat child tends to wait until the ball is within range before moving.

And swimming periods for the overweight children proved to be delightfully motionless. While average children were inactive in the water less than a quarter of the time, the overweight managed 72 per cent inactivity.

"The overweight children just stood in the water talking," says Dr. Mayer.

All this leads to his conclusion that "even with a reasonably calorie-controlled diet in combination with planned recreation, it is going to be difficult to achieve weight reduction unless the overweight child is also induced to participate actively in the planned activities."

Kauffman, Atwater, Calif., in an Aug. 31 evening ceremony at the Pasadena Army Post Chapel. Major Madsen, Army chaplain, performed the double ring ceremony, which was followed by a reception at the Officer's Club Patio.

Honor attendants of the couple were Karen Barr, South Pasadena, the bride's roommate, and William E. Max, Ronald Kauffman of San Jose and Richard Kauffman, Atwater, ushers.

Bride's Gown
The bride wore an original of pure silk organza and Chantilly lace, with basque waist, square neckline and full floor length skirt which extended into a chapel train, worn as a bustle after the ceremony. A crown of seed pearls and tiny white orchids held her elbow length veil. She carried a lavender orchid with stephanotis and trailing ivy.

Her honor maid's cocktail length dress was white lace over ice blue taffeta, worn with a matching blue petal hat. Her flowers were pink and white carnations.

The bride's mother wore a sheath of shaded green pure silk with beige and avocado accessories and a pastel pink rose corsage. Mrs. Kauffman chose a light blue linen sheath with white accessories and a white orchid corsage.

U-M To Limit Outside Frosh

ANN ARBOR (AP) — University of Michigan officials Friday confirmed that the school will limit the number of out-of-state students at enrollment time next September because of a big increase in freshmen from Michigan communities.

University President Harlan Hatcher said the move would not be permanent. He added that the difference from this year to next in the ratio of out-of-state students and those who live in Michigan would not be significant enough to warrant criticism.

Hatcher announced the move at the monthly meeting of the U-M Board of Regents.

Marvin Niehuss, the school's executive vice president, said "there's no disposition on the part of the regents to cut down on either out-of-state or foreign students."

"They see the realities of the situation," he said, "and, while hesitant to endorse a policy which might be construed as lessening the cosmopolitan appeal of the university, they are in general agreement that there is no other solution."

Niehuss said it would be wrong to assume that the U-M would automatically hold the line of out-of-state student registrations every year. He said the policy will be flexible.

The state board of education said surveys indicate there will be a 20 to 25 per cent increase in the number of graduating seniors in Michigan high schools next June. A corresponding enrollment increase is expected at the U-M, officials said.

Fishing Conditions

In the Newberry area, Menominee fishing has been very good off the mouth of the Two-Hearted. Best results are when winds are off shore. Perch have been biting well on the Tahquamenon near the mouth of the Sage. A few rainbows are being taken in the Two-Hearted from the Reed and Green Bridge down. The fall run has not started yet.

Snyder Lake, north of Seney, has been good for perch. Rainbows are being taken in Dodge, Island and Clear Lakes in Schoolcraft County. These lakes are among those open for fall rainbow fishing. Walleyes are starting to bite in South Manistiquette Lake and this type of fishing should be improving.

The Upper St. Mary's near the Soo, has been quite consistent for perch, pike and bass. Perch are also biting well in Emerson Bay. Perch fishing continues good in the LesCheneaux waters off Cedarville and Hessel.

Heaviest Quint Weighs 3 Pounds

By DAN PERKES

ABERDEEN, S.D. (AP) — The Fischer quintuplets — all 15 pounds, 10 ounces of them — observed their first week's birthday today with their weights on record for the first time.

"Lively, squalling and kicking" was the word from St. Luke's Hospital where the four girls and a boy have been since their arrival.

Tiny scales pushed through plastic cuffs of the incubators showed that James Andrew, as expected, was the heaviest at 3 pounds, 13 ounces. The smallest is Mary Ann, first born and named after her mother, who weighed in at 2½ pounds.

The second and third arrivals, Mary Magdalene and Mary Catherine, weigh 3 pounds each and Mary Margaret, last after James Andrew, weighs 3 pounds, 5 ounces.

Dr. James Berbos said feedings are scaled according to weight, with the boy getting 12 cubic centimeters of artificial milk formula every two hours, three of the girls 9 cc's apiece and Mary Margaret 8. An ounce of sterile water is added at the end of each feeding to clear the plastic pipes through which they take their food.

Berbos said that Mrs. Andrew Fischer is scheduled to leave the hospital Monday. He said she can do some housework but probably will require assistance in caring for her other five children—also four girls and a boy.

Fischer himself was reported conferring with attorneys on new offers for the world-famed newcomers, already the recipients of an estimated $250,000 cash and gifts.

Trapper Catches Rare Albino Coyote

HOUGHTON—The gift of time ran out on the rare albino coyote caught by John Polvi of Ewen. He caught the specimen in the southern part of McMillan township, near Ewen.

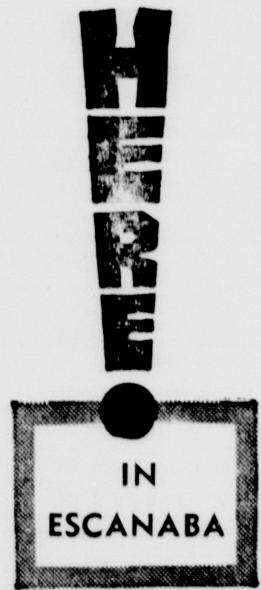

Some time ago Polvi found a white paw in one of his traps set for coyote, wondering exactly what he had caught, he reset the trap at a different vantage point.

His reward was a female albino coyote weighing forty pounds and about three years old. Missing was part of the front left leg which he had previously found in his trap.

According to available information and records, the albino coyote was indeed a rare catch. There had not been any reports of an albino coyote running around the area, so it leads one to believe it traveled at night or in the shadows. Possibly the heat of the sun was too much for the tender skin.
